Contingency Business Environment

The DoD established a Contingency Business Environment (CBE) Board of Governors (BOG) to provide oversight and management of current and future CBE information management tools and technology. The CBE BOG convened to discuss how the contingency business environment for the acquisition process should be managed and resourced to support future contingency operations laid out in a Guidebook.

The purpose of the CBE Guidebook is twofold: Support the DoD initiative to establish and manage a contingency e-business program supporting the acquisition process, and provide the warfighter and contingency acquisition personnel with the guidance necessary to effectively utilize ebusiness tools in the contingency environments. Ultimately, the CBE guidebook mandated the use of the 3in1 tool to quickly leverage contracted support in contingency environments. OCSJX-15

For the fourth year running, 3in1 will be featured in the Operational Contract Support Joint Exercise (OCSJX-15). OCSJX-15 is designed to prepare uniformed and civilian operational contract support professionals to deploy and support any contingency, humanitarian or operational mission. 3in1 participation in this year's event will take place at Ft. Bliss, Texas from 3/17 through 3/30, and Schofield Barracks, Hawaii from 3/31 through 4/12. In each location, basic 3in1 user training will be conducted initially. Trained users will then carry out scenarios requiring 3in1 order execution in days following the training. Along with 3in1, other Joint Contingency & Expeditionary Services (JCXS) tools such as JCCS, TBC, and CASM will also take part in OCSJX-15. If you plan to attend either event, make sure to visit the JCXS table to learn more about JCXS tools and grab some free swag!
